Makes you happy: Life in yellow abundance

Rock the financial industry as a project manager! That was Peter's goal - until a burn-out threw him completely off track. So the Simpsons helped him back on track.

LEARNING TO DO SOMETHING
JUST FOR ME: THAT WAS THE BEST MEDICINE.

Since Brexit, Amsterdam in the Netherlands has become the number 1 financial centre in Europe. This is probably one of the best places to work in finance. Big projects, high pressure, fast pace: As project manager, Peter really got stuck into it - with a lot of initiative and commitment. However, that also meant that he felt responsible if something started going wrong: "If something goes wrong, it's up to me". At some point, the pressure of the fast-paced environment got to him: "I felt personally responsible, kept trying to fix everything". But his life often felt like screaming into a void.

One morning the ambitious young man just couldn't get out of bed. Literally, physically, couldn't. Diagnosis: Burnout. The reason: Permanent stress. Peter had to act. He took some time off, started seeing doctors and a professional coach. He suggested finding an offline activity - one that would teach him how to focus again and to regain his inner balance. Step by step, learning to focus again. To do something that he could enjoy all by himself.

You can see more of Peter's work here:

Painting scenes from the Simpsons wasn't something he had to think about too much. For him it was just a natural, almost an obvious choice, because the cult series about an average American family means a lot to someone who was born in Czech Republic. He can remember exactly when the show launched in his country. His parents had no idea what kind of show it was and let him watch it even though he was just six. His sense of humor? Since he pretty much grew up with the show, you can say that it formed his sense of humor. When he paints, everything around him just disappears. It's a form of meditation for him. "It's been helping me to disassociate from other people's problems and focus on the things I can influence and enjoy. Once I stopped trying to please other people, the rest just happened". This is how Peter describes the feeling when he works with the acrylic markers.

Once he stopped trying to please other people, the rest just happened. The other day, one of his sketches went viral. Someone even had it tattooed on their arm! For Peter it was a great feeling when your work is appreciated like that. Yet he doesn't think of himself as anyone special – just a guy who likes to paint characters from his favourite TV show. What would he therefore like to pass on to other makers? "So if right now you're thinking, you could do this: Well, yes, you can! All you have to do: You just have to start".

LET THEM OUT.

SHOP-IN-SHOP
SYSTEM

THE FLEXIBLE PERMANENT POSITIONING FOR AN EXCELLENT SHOPPING EXPERIENCE

The modular shop-in-shop system from Schneider presents the product assortment for your customers in an attractive, clear and appealing way.

This will not only increase customer satisfaction, but also your turnover.

The individual displays, which have a uniform basic design, can be flexibly integrated into the shop-in-shop display and thus ensure a clear and sophisticated brand presence. Three individual displays form a 50 cm grid. They are also designed to be durable so that they can be used permanently and flexibly refilled again and again.

The following items of displays can be ordered as part of the shop-in-shop system:

NEW SYSTEM COLOUR FOR A NEW APPLICATION

With the Makers Line from Schneider, we specifically address new customers in the creative sector and consciously set ourselves apart visually from the topic of writing. Shop in Shop (SiS) of the Makers Line are in classic white with deep blue accents. This makes it clear, even from a distance, that these ranges are intended for a new application and gives the SIS an elegant and high-quality appearance.

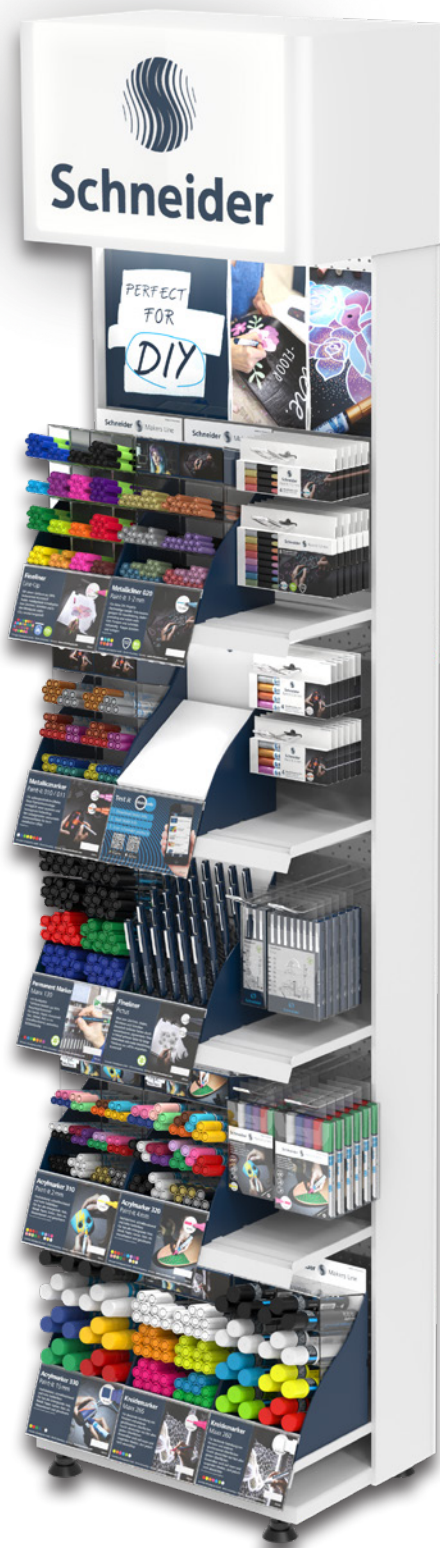

BASE FRAME VERSION A WITH STORAGE AND SHELVES (HEIGHT 2,10 M)

The base frame made of white metal is equipped with five metal shelves and a display space for generic marketing claims that can be flexibly integrated. An attachment with integrated LED lamps and a scatter plate as well as LED strips under the individual tiers provide the appropriate lighting and attention at the POS.

In addition, fifteen valuable displays - to be selected from a predefined product range - have to be ordered. For version A, Schneider has an examples of proposed equipment to facilitate the order (see page 3 and following).
